Dear Dick:

With regard to your request for NFAC publications, it is my understanding that roughly eighty-nine have been provided and that four are still outstanding. They are:

a. "Cost of Chinese Military Buildup Against the Soviet Union." This was a self-initiated typescript, which should not have appeared on the machine run which was provided to you. This paper was never issued as a separate document; however, some of its general findings were used in an article in OSR's informal monthly review. It is my understanding that the information contained in the typescript has been blended into the enclosed informal OSR publication.

b. "Soviet View of Submarine Trailing." This was a self-initiated typescript, which should not have been included on the NFAC machine run due to its informality. The basic findings in that typescript will be reflected in NIE 11-3/8-78, soon to be issued and for which you are on the distribution list.

c. A paper which has come to be known as the [redacted] I hope to be able to discuss this paper with you in more detail by no later than 4 December 1978.

Sincerely,

4 December 1978
